Ministry:

Because of her artistic talents she was among the first to be a full-time college student.

She was remembered as a firm and exacting teacher in her classroom. She advised and judged with the precision of a perfectionist. For sixteen years, she taught art at St. Francis Academy. In 1962 she was elected as a General Councilor and served in that capacity until her death.

After a short illness she suffered heart failure and died in the Motherhouse Infirmary on April 24, 1964.

“Her soul lives in the light and glow of Eternal sunshine.”
